PREFACE.

THE subscriber herewith presents the first number of his DIRECTORY OF THE TOWN OF NEWTON.

He has been induced to undertake this enterprise by the following considerations:—

First. The obvious need of a recent and accurate Directory in a town of such large and increasing population and importance; a need greatly multiplied by the geographical and social division of the town into several distinct communities.

Second. His facilities, as a book-printer of long experience, for the publication of such a work in the cheapest, most convenient, and useful form.

Third. His personal acquaintance with the people and their interests, derived from a long residence in the town; enabling him to secure readily all statistics and information required in such a work, and to insure their completeness and accuracy.

Fourth. His advantages, as above suggested, for issuing at intervals, new editions of the Directory, with such additional corrections and improvements as may be required.

Many difficulties attend the original collection and preparation of materials for such a work, and the subscriber does not claim perfection for this edition. But his purpose and aim have been to make it complete and accurate; and he believes it will be found to be unusually reliable and serviceable.

The most important feature of the work, the alphabetical list of names of citizens, with their places of residence and business, is guaranteed in its accuracy by the Government census, just completed; and, to further confirm its correctness, it has been revised by the Chairman of the Board of Assessors, whose books furnish facilities therefor.

The Directory of citizens, classified according to business or calling, appended to the alphabetical list, will be found to be full and convenient.

The statistics of the Churches, Schools, Societies, Fire Department, and other institutions of the town, are full and accurate.

The number of names inserted in the work is 4,114.

The list of streets embraces all those accepted by the town or laid out by individuals, up to the moment of going to press.

The Directory presents a new Map, prepared at great expense, and containing all the new streets, as above described.

The military history of Newton, which prefaces the Directory, will be read with great interest, and the public will join in extending to Rev. Dr. Smith, the author, grateful thanks for a record so valuable and creditable to our town. Like all the productions of his pen, it deserves perpetuation, and will be recognized as a standard authority upon the matters therein reviewed.

Among those friends who have so kindly assisted him in the preparation of the work, the publisher would mention: Geo. H. Jones, Esq., John B. Goodrich, Esq., James W. Bailey, Esq., Daniel E. Snow, Esq., Joel H. Hills, Esq., Joseph H. Woodford, Esq., Ebenezer Woodward, Esq., Rev. Daniel L. Furber, Rev. Henry J. Patrick, Rev. Samuel E. Lowry, Rev. Charles W. Cushing, Hon. Thos. Rice, Jr., Edward J. Collins, Esq., Otis Pettee, Esq., James F. C. Hyde, Esq., and Marshall S. Rice, Esq. His thanks are also due to Isaac Hagar, Esq., under whose personal supervision the entire work has passed through the press.

If his Directory meets the public approval, he will be gratified; if it fails of that, while he will deeply regret the fact, he will nevertheless be satisfied with the reflection that his best efforts were put forth to render it an acceptable visitor in every household.

Trusting that his labors will be kindly appreciated, he submits the results to the judgment of the public.

HISTORY OF NEWTON.

BY REV. S. F. SMITH.

THE PATRIOTIC AND MILITARY SPIRIT OF NEWTON.

FROM the beginning of its history, Newton has manifested an honorable, patriotic, and military spirit. No call for defence of the national domain, or the national honor, has been made, which the citizens of this town have not been ready to answer. And many are the bold and fearless names recorded with ardent praise upon her escutcheon.

It is proof of the interest taken by the people in military affairs that two commons were laid out at an early period as training-fields. The first was at Newton Centre. Nearly two thirds of the space were given by Jonathan Hyde, and upwards of one third by Elder Wiswall, or his sons, who lived in the vicinity. This land, the common, so called, has been in the possession of the town since 1711, but no deed of the gift is recorded. In 1799, a powder-house was built on the easterly side of it, which stood until a few years since. The second training-field was laid out at Newtonville, in April, 1735, by Captain Joseph Fuller, father of Judge Fuller. But in the year 1787, the town discontinued this common, and the land reverted to the heirs of the donor.

A large number of the citizens, when compared with the population of the town, have borne military titles. A catalogue of the citizens contained in the "Genealogical Register," which reaches to the beginning of the present century, but embraces names belonging to a later period, gives two generals, nine colonels, three majors, forty-one captains, twenty-one lieutenants, and eight ensigns. The later history of the town, as is shown in the records of the recent war, presents no decline in the number or the valor of the townsmen.

In the early conflicts with the Indians, the men of Newton showed much bravery, and some of them lost their lives in these encounters. John Druce, son of Vincent Druce, one of the earliest settlers, was a soldier in Capt. Prentice's troop of horse, which rendered important services in King Philip's War in 1675. On the 28th of June, a company of cavalry under Captain Prentice marched from Cambridge Village (Newton) towards Mount Hope, the haunt of King Philip. In an engagement with the Indians, John Druce was mortally wounded July 1, and died the next day. He is supposed to be the first person from this town who fell in King Philip's War. Captain Prentice, by his presence and bravery, contributed largely to check the progress of Philip's troops, and he rendered invaluable services throughout the war. By his bold and rapid marches he put the enemy to flight wherever he went, and his name was a terror to hostile Indians. He died at the age of eighty-nine, having continued to ride till the close of his long life. His death was occasioned by a fall from his horse, and he was buried under arms by his old company of troopers, July 7, 1809. Edward Jackson, son of Deacon John Jackson, was slain February 21, 1676, in an attack by Indians on the town of Medfield, at the early age of twenty-five. Other names appear of those who mingled in these conflicts with the Indians, of whom some survived, and others sacrificed their lives.

It was natural to expect that men of so brave a mould should be led by sympathy with their brethren to aid them against the invasions of hostile Indians. Their own experience with the natives, it is true, had been only of the peaceful kind. Notwithstanding, the citizens of Newton thought it expedient to establish two garrison houses for their protection against a hostile invasion. One of these houses stood on Centre Street, on the land opposite Hyde's nursery, and the other on Brighton Street, on the site of the house now or formerly owned by Mr. Ephraim Ward. Happily, however, the people saw the Nonantum within their own boundaries early brought in contact with the Gospel, through the labors of John Eliot, and transformed, by the power of that Gospel, from a tribe of ignorant and barbarous savages to a Christian people. Waban, their chief, was Eliot's first convert. Through the labors of their missionary they had the Bible and "The Poor Man's Piety" in their own tongue. They learned to regard the white men as their friends, and they were friends to the whites. But other Indian tribes were less favored than they, and less docile and tractable. Many of them were wild, mischievous, cruel, and implacable. And they were jealous of the incursions of the white settlers. They saw with an evil eye and a malicious heart their game consumed by a foreign population; their hunting grounds abridged and destroyed; their privileges circumscribed; doubtless, often their natural rights trampled upon, and their glimmering religion pronounced superstition and heresy. Resolved to drive out this new and unwelcome enemy, they conspired to burn the homes they had built, to break up and sweep away their settlements, to carry their wives and children into captivity, and to murder and scalp their men.

But the English settlers deemed that "the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof." They scorned the red man's exclusive claim to these broad acres and living streams, to the woods and the hills, the cornlands and the waterfalls. The fierce antagonism of the races was at once developed. The weaker were in due time compelled to yield to the stronger, till they had no longer a place in their ancient inheritance. But long and bitter was the struggle, and all the skill and strategy of the whites were brought into requisition before the question was settled, that the white race must rule and the red race must succumb. Long did the Indians hang on the borders of civilization, and watch for opportunities to annoy, to carry away, or to kill their enemies. But with a determined zeal the men of Newton left their sparse settlements in the wilderness, committing their wives and children to the God of battles; they endured bravely the hardships incident to travelling through pathless woods, with little food except the game they brought down with their guns or caught with their fishing nets. They outwitted by their superior intelligence their wily enemies; and, helping one another through the great emergencies, now at Casco (Portland), now at Bethel, in Maine, whither some of their brethren had removed; now in New Hampshire, where the oldest captain, Noah Wiswall, was killed in 1690; now in Massachusetts, where John Myrick, Nathaniel Hakey, and Ebenezer Seager were massacred in Groton; and anon amid the fastnesses of Mount Hope in Rhode Island, they left no unconquered foe to plot against them; no red-skinned savage to light up the heavens with their burning dwellings at night; no barbarous invaders to murder or carry into captivity their wives and children. With a natural regard for their own brethren, their kindred in hardship and trials, as well as in nationality and in blood, they rested not till they had chased the savages out of their wilderness and out of life, and thus secured a permanent peace.

In the war with the French and Indians, called the old French war, some of the citizens of the town were in hot engagements, and some were slain. Of these some of the most distinguished were Samuel Jenks, who served as a subaltern officer in the campaign of 1758 and 1760; Lieut. Timothy Jackson, whose wife carried on the farm and worked on the land while he was gone to battle with the redskins; Col. Ephraim Jackson, who was also a lieutenant in the same war; and especially Col. Ephraim Williams, the founder of Williams College. He displayed uncommon military talents, and was appointed a captain in what was denominated the Canada service. He had under his command a fort at Williamstown, under whose protection the settlers in that part of the country began their improvements. He was shot through the head in the memorable battle fought with the French and Indians near Lake George, in September, 1755. He lived a life of single blessedness, and died at the age of forty. His will was made on his way to join the army, about two months before his death.

The inhabitants of Newton entered with vigor into the spirit of the Revolutionary war, and contributed liberally, in proportion to their numbers and means to meet the expenses of that great struggle, both in treasure and in blood. We doubt if any town in the Commonwealth can present in this respect a more honorable record. The inhabitants recorded their protest against the Stamp Act in October, 1765. In October, 1766, they expressed their united abhorrence of the destruction of property in the riots in Boston, and instructed their representative to use his influence to have the losses made good to the sufferers from the public treasury. The following year, they resolved in town meeting not to use any gloves except of domestic manufacture, and to lessen the use of superfluities, their aim being directed especially against those articles which were imported. In January, 1772, they passed a resolve affirming that no good man can be silent and inactive in the cause of liberty at this alarming period; also, a resolve declaring that all taxation imposed on the inhabitants of the colonies without their consent or representation in Parliament, for the purpose of raising a revenue, is unconstitutional and oppressive. Two years later they passed another series of resolves especially denouncing the tax on tea, and binding themselves not to purchase or use it or suffer it to be used in their respective families.

As the clouds of the Revolution gathered, the citizens took measures still graver than mere resolutions. The Selectmen were authorized to procure firearms for the use of those who were too poor to purchase them. John Pigeon presented to the town two field-pieces; and it was voted, January 2, 1775, to raise a company of thirty-two Minute men, who were to meet half a day every week during the winter for the purpose of drill, every man being paid for his time the sum of eightpence, or, as afterwards stated, one shilling, and the eight officers eight shillings a day, "over and above the one shilling each."

At the opening of the war, April 19, 1775, Newton numbered three companies of infantry, — the East, West, and Minute men, numbering respectively 76, 105, and 37 men; total, 218. Jeremiah Wiswall commanded the East company, Amariah Fuller the West, and Phineas Cook the Minute men. Besides these, many Newton men not attached to either company, and who had passed beyond the age for military service, were in the battles of Lexington and Concord. These volunteers were from 76 years of age down to 51, the eldest being Mr. Noah Wiswall, whose son was commander of the East company. It is related of him that after the company had marched for Lexington, he started on foot and alone to follow them, saying, "I wish to see what the boys are doing." Standing with some Americans not far from the field, three British soldiers came in sight. He immediately pointed them out to his companions, saying, "If you aim at the middle one, you will hit one of the three." They did so, and were successful. The other two fled. As he held out his hand, pointing to the Britons, a musket-ball passed through it. He coolly bound up the hand with his handkerchief, picked up the gun of the fallen regular, and bore it home as a trophy. It seems incredible that men so advanced in years could have endured the fatigues of such a day. But their sons were in the conflict, and they could not stay at home.

Two companies were raised shortly after the battles of Concord and Lexington, both commanded by Newton captains, — Phineas Cook and Nathan Fuller, — and embracing seventy-four Newton men. They enlisted for eight months, and joined the army of Cambridge, March 4, 1776. The East and West companies, by request of General Washington, numbering together 113 men, marched to take possession of Dorchester Heights.

There was an important article in the warrant for the Town Meeting held June 17, 1776, which read as follows: —

"That in the case the Hon. Continental Congress should, for the safety of the American Colonies, declare them independent of the Kingdom of Great Britain, whether the inhabitants of this town will solemnly engage with their lives and fortunes to support them in the measure.

"After the debate, the question was put, and the vote passed unanimously in the affirmative."

It is said in reliable history that from the first to the last hour of the struggle for independence, Newton men formed a part of every army and expedition, and fought in almost every battle and skirmish throughout the contest. There was hardly a man in the town, old or young, able or unable, who did not volunteer, enlist, or serve as a drafted man in the ranks of the army, from the severest battles down to the quiet duty of guarding Burgoyne's army after its surrender.

In August, 1777, a company of 96 men was raised by Captain Joseph Fuller. Thirty of these were from Newton. They marched to Skeensborough, Bennington, and Lake George, to oppose the advance of Burgoyne.

In March, 1778, a company of 68 men was raised by Captain Edward Fuller. Forty of the number belonged to Newton. In January, 1777, 64 Newton men enlisted for three years or for the war. In 1780, 54 Newton men marched to reinforce the Continental army.

The town from time to time voted bounties to volunteers enlisting for various expeditions, and paid their soldiers, in proportion to the times, a respectable compensation for their services. The citizens who had resources at their command cheerfully loaned the sums required to meet these demands, in sums varying from three pounds to four hundred and thirty two pounds.

Newton also instituted a strict guardianship over the opinions of the citizens. A list was made out of persons whose residence in the town was thought to be dangerous to public safety, and arrangements were made for their removal. One person, after having been examined as to his political views, was adjudged pure from tory sentiments, and a committee was appointed to draft a declaration for him to sign, which would be satisfactory to the town.

The number of Newton men who served more or less during the Revolutionary war in the Continental army and in the militia, was about 430. The amount of money raised for the purposes of the war cannot be accurately stated; but the frequent action of the citizens, in town meeting assembled, voting large sums of money for these purposes, proves that they strained every nerve, voluntarily distressing and impoverishing themselves, that they might transmit to their posterity a free, enlightened, and prosperous republic.

The roster of the army gives the following names of Newton men who bore office among their fellow-soldiers: Colonel Joseph Ward, aide-de-camp of Major-General Ward; Michael Jackson, Colonel, and William Hull, Lieutenant-Colonel, of the 8th regiment; Ephraim Jackson, Colonel of the 10th regiment; Nathan Fuller, Lieutenant-Colonel of the 13th regiment; seven captains, nine lieutenants, and two ensigns. Forty-four descendants of Edward Jackson, bearing the name of Jackson, were in the revolutionary army from Newton. There were twenty-two bearing the name of Fuller, sixteen the name of Parker, fifteen of Hyde, eleven of Stone, nine of Clarke, six of Seger, &c. Capt. Henry King, of Newton, was one of the guard at the execution of André.

The revolutionary troops from Newton were not without a representative from the sable sons of Africa. Pomp, the slave of Jonathan Jackson, was manumitted two weeks before the promulgation of the Declaration of Independence; he enlisted in the army as Pomp Jackson, served during the war, and then received an honorable discharge. He afterwards settled in Andover, near a pleasant sheet of water known as "Pomp's Pond," and the vicinity of which was found by the writer of this sketch in the summers of 1830 and 1831 to be peculiarly rich in specimens of the various and beautiful flora of the New-England States.

The citizens were ready to contribute not only their services but also their pecuniary means to promote the military glory of the town. John Pigeon, who came into the place a few years before the commencement of the Revolution, and was a zealous, liberal, and energetic friend of the independence of the colonies, presented to the town two cannons or "field-pieces," which the town accepted with thanks, and voted "to raise men to exercise the field-pieces." Several persons loaned the town larger or smaller amounts, according to their ability, to pay the soldiers in the army of the Revolution. Captain Jeremiah Wiswall led the East company of infantry at the commencement of that period, and loaned the town £45; John Wiswall served in the army and loaned the town in 1777, £20; Joseph White loaned the town £100; Deacon John Woodward was in the battle of Concord, and loaned £100;

Samuel Woodward was likewise in the battle of Concord, and loaned for the same purpose £120,—bold and freedom-loving men, risking for their country's welfare both their treasure and their blood. There was also a Deacon Elhanan Winchester, father of the noted preacher, who gained his livelihood by the double occupation of agriculture and shoemaking, to which he added occasional preaching without pecuniary compensation, who amassed some property and exhibited true patriotism; for he loaned the town £300 in March, 1777, to pay the soldiers their wages.

It is interesting to see how in the great struggle of the country to free itself from a foreign yoke, the early settlers rushed to the conflict like men who knew no fear, as if regardless of all consequences to themselves or their families. Several members of the same family, in some instances, buckled on the harness and went forth to the fight,—perhaps for mutual protection and succor; perhaps because the example of patriotism is contagious: and when one went, others were unwilling to stay behind; perhaps because they were alike schooled to love and desire liberty and a free country, and alike eager to participate in paying the price by which such a blessing was to be won. Thus three sons of Moses Whitney all died in the army. Three of the sons and some of the sons-in-law of Captain Jeremiah Wiswall were in the East Newton company in the battle of Lexington. The bravery of the fathers, instilled by incessant teaching into the minds of their offspring, was transmitted in a faithful line of succession, and the records of that stormy age exhibit, among the living and the dead, warriors well entitled to be characterized as worthy sons of worthy sires.

The wives and mothers and sisters of those times must have been true to the spirit of patriotism, or they would not have been parted so uncomplainingly from their natural protectors, that the latter might engage heart and hand in the deadly conflict. We can almost see them now, in their sparse settlements, living frugally on their narrow means, and surrounded by their numerous and growing families,—shrinking from the sacrifice of those who were dearer to them than life, but at the same time consenting, for the interest of the public weal, to lay upon the altar of their country their fathers, and their brothers, and their husbands. Truly, they were worthy mothers of the noble women of the period of our recent national struggle, who in a more delicate age and in a fiercer contest, emulated their example, and through tears and blood trod patiently and lovingly in their footsteps. All honor to the women of Newton, both of the earlier and the later date. Without their spirit of courage and self-denial, without their ardent patriotism, giving their beloved ones to their country and cheering them onward in hours of gloom, how different might have been the results both of the revolutionary war, and of the later conflict, waged in behalf of the nation's life!

Since our recent experience, we are more competent to appreciate the efforts and the self-denial of our ancestors in the great revolutionary struggle. How different were their circumstances from our own! They were comparatively few in number; obtaining a frugal living from fields but recently wrested from the wilderness. The arts of war were imperfectly understood. There were but few rich men. Even those who had great landed estates did not abound in money, and the money which they possessed was fearfully depreciated in value before the close of the war. The entire country was sparsely peopled, and the means of feeding and paying a large army were not easy to be secured. The personal property in the hands of a few was mostly the fruit of slow accumulations and of great labor; hence it was a more serious thing to part with it than with easily-hoarded gains. Yet our Newton ancestors freely gave of their substance, and generously voted to raise money by taxation to supply the wants of the soldiers. Thirty-one names are recorded of those who loaned money to the town to pay the heroes in the field. The smallness of the sums loaned by some of these persons indicated that they offered of their penury,—the fruits of wearing labor,—on the altar of their country. Among those who thus supplied “the sinews of war,” were two colonels, four captains, one lieutenant, one cornet, and two females (woman in the war, as lately, so then, an efficient, willing, and loving helper), one of the two a widow, and her offering was £13. In 1778, a tax of £3,000 was voted by the town towards the expenses of the war. In 1779, the citizens voted a tax of £3,000 for raising men and other expenses. In March, 1780, £30,000 were voted for the same purpose; in September of the same year, £40,000, and in the December following, £100,000. Money, it is true, had greatly depreciated in value; for in May, 1781, the town voted to raise £400 in silver, in lieu of £100,000 in bills. But this enormous depreciation must have made many poor who had once been rich. The loss of life and of the means of living was very great during the war, making the heavy taxation so much the more burdensome. The entire population in 1775 has been estimated at less than 1,400. Yet nearly one in every four of the entire population served in the army, and both these and the stay-at-homes gave at the same time their treasure, their service, and their blood to their suffering country. In comparison with the exertion and the sufferings of our fathers, how small have been our sacrifices and how insignificant our efforts! During the war of the rebellion, our armies were multiplied a thousand-fold, as compared with them; our expenses were gigantic; our battles were as a hundred to one; our wounded and our slain were beyond calculation. Every thing was carried forward on a scale suggesting the idea of sublimity. But was not that “day of small things,” after all, in view of the character and the circumstances of the age, more marvellous than the experiences of our own times?

That Newton may receive its due share of honor for the part performed by her citizens in the events of that sublime but trying period of our history, when these United States were passing from a condition of dependence to the condition of a free republic, we must not forbear to mention that one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was Roger Sherman, a native of Newton.

Of the war of 1812 no mention is made in any form in the records of the town. It is probable that the inhabitants patiently and patriotically endured the inconveniences, the self-denials, and the enormous expense of living incident to that period, and the apprehensions of being called upon to take part in the scenes of another sanguinary encounter with Great Britain. If any of the citizens of the town entered into the conflict, they must have embarked in it as individual volunteers; and their absence from the accustomed haunts of their peaceful usefulness created not a ripple in the tide of life among their fellow-citizens. To this period, however, belongs the statement that the name of Gen. Wm. Hull, a brave, patriotic soldier of the Revolution, has found a place in this connection. He was not a native of Newton, but married a daughter of Judge Fuller in 1781, and owned and resided on the premises now occupied by Governor Claflin. His services during the whole revolutionary war are said to have been constant and valuable. At the commencement of the war of 1812, he was appointed commander of the north-western army for the conquest of Canada. The same year, in an evil hour, he surrendered his army to the British General Brock. He was tried by court-martial for this act and sentenced to be shot; but recommended to the mercy of the President, on account of his age and revolutionary services. He published afterwards a defence of his conduct, which has had a favorable effect on the minds of impartial men. His life was spared, but the stain was indelible.

To this period belongs also an interesting incident in the life of Rev. Joseph Grafton, minister for nearly half a century of the First Baptist Church in Newton,—a man noted for his wonderful gift in prayer. In those days it was customary, on the occasion of military review, to draw up the soldiers into a hollow square, and to have prayers offered by the chaplain of the regiment. The troubles now threatening between this country and England gave an air of solemnity to the military pomp and pageantry of the day. Mr. Grafton, as chaplain, was called upon to perform the usual service. He mounted a gun-carriage that was near him, and placing one foot upon the cannon, poured forth such a strain of devout supplication as to astonish and delight every hearer. His apt allusions to the existing state of the country and the perils into which her soldiers might soon be called, affected many to tears. A very profligate and hardened man, who was present, and who was deeply tinctured with infidel principles, was afterwards heard to remark, that "Mr. Grafton was the first man who ever drew tears from his eyes."

The later patriotic and military history of Newton, especially as it clusters around the recent war, is too familiar to the present citizens of the town to require minute notice. Those who were present at the enthusiastic meetings held, from time to time, to encourage the enlistment of fresh troops, and who witnessed the noble devotion of the choicest young men of the town to the cause of their imperilled country, bear this glorious record indelibly inscribed upon their memories and their hearts. None who were present can ever forget a meeting held at the public hall, in Newton Centre, during one of the darkest periods of the war, when Charles Ward came forward and pledged himself to fight, and if need be to die for the sacred cause of his country. He was young and delicate. His gentle manners won upon every heart. His future was full of promise. Just ready to enter college, and hoping afterwards to engage in the sacred profession to which he had consecrated his life,—the world opened before him in the most tempting attitudes. He stood up in that crowded assembly of stalwart men, and spoke of his prospects and his hopes. "But," he said, "if my country needs my services, I am willing for her sake to make the sacrifice." Few dry eyes were in that assembly that night. He gave himself to the cause, and after a few weeks fell on the field of Gettysburg. Most worthily is his name perpetuated by his comrades in the title of their military organization. His spirit and his fate were only a specimen of many others as promising, as beloved, as full of hope as he, but who now sleep in a soldier's grave.

During the entire war every heart was busied with its scenes and its demands. Every pulpit discussed themes suited to nerve the people to steadiness in the great struggle. Every man was absorbed in the grave necessities of the occasion. And gentle woman, in every house, the aged and the young, was employed in providing means to alleviate the sufferings of the wounded, the sick, and the dying. Besides the sums of money voted and transmitted to the soldiers, thousands of boxes loaded every express wagon going to the front, — the testimonials of the love and interest of those who remained at home.

The town, in its corporate capacity, made liberal appropriations to meet the expenses of the war. The amounts voted by the town, at various dates, were as follows: —

November 4, 1862,		$50,000 00
August 7, 1863,		5,000 00
April 3, 1864,		23,000 00
August 5, 1864,		20,000 00
Total,		$98,000 00
Amount expended,		92,621 00

The whole number of men required to fill the quota of Newton, under all the calls for volunteers made by the President of the United States, was 1,067. The number actually furnished by the town was 1,129; giving a surplus of 62. The number of volunteers mustered into the service for three years, who belonged in the town of Newton, was 323. This is exclusive of those who served in the navy, and of others, natives of the town, and whose acts of valor did it honor, although at the date of their enlistment they were citizens of other places. It is also exclusive of many who served for shorter periods, both as officers and privates, and whose names are worthy of honor.

The town of Newton furnished in this war thirty-six commissioned officers and two general officers. Of the latter, Brevet Major-General Adin B. Underwood was severely wounded while bravely leading the Thirty-third Massachusetts regiment in the successful attack on the enemy at Lookout Mountain, Tennessee; Brevet Brigadier-General J. Cushing Edmands was also wounded.

Of the entire number of Newton men who enlisted for three years, there were in the thirty-second regiment 97; in the first, 26; in the sixteenth, 37; in the twenty-fourth, 17; and smaller numbers in several others. The whole number of Massachusetts regiments containing one or more Newton men was 30.

The battles in which regiments containing Newton men were engaged during the war, were as follows: —

First Regiment. — Bull Run, Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Glendale, Kettle Run, Chantilly, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Locust Grove, Spottsylvania.

Second Regiment. — Jackson, Front Royal, Winchester, Cedar Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Resaca, Kenesaw Mountain, Peach-Tree Creek, Atlanta, Raleigh, Averysborough.

Seventh Regiment. — The Peninsula, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna River, Cold Harbor.

Twelfth Regiment. — Cedar Mountain, Second Bull Run, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna River, Cold Harbor, Petersburg.

Thirteenth Regiment. — Second Bull Run, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna River, Cold Harbor, Petersburg.

Sixteenth Regiment.—Fair Oaks, Glendale, Malvern Hill, Kettle Run, Chantilly, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Gettysburg, Locust Grove, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, North Anna River, Cold Harbor, Petersburg.

Thirty-third Regiment.—Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Beverly Ford, Gettysburg, Lookout Mountain, Missionary Ridge, and the battles of General Sherman's Grand Army.

First Regiment of Cavalry.—Poolsville, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Brandy Station, Aldie, Upperville, Gettysburg, Williamsport, Culpepper, Auburn, Todd's Tavern, Fortifications of Richmond, Vaughan Road, St. Mary's Church, Cold Harbor, Bellefield.

Thus in not less than seventy-five fields did the men of Newton imperil their lives for the salvation of their country. They fought bravely and brought back victory. The names of those who fell can be read upon our beautiful Soldiers' Monument,—one of the earliest structures of the kind erected in New England, and another testimony to the patriotism of the people.

Besides the citizens of Newton who were engaged in the sacred cause of freedom, the members of the Theological Institution at Newton Centre deserve honorable mention. Four of the young men enlisted early in the war. Several former members of the Institution voluntarily did service in the army, of whom nine were chaplains. Several other persons, after completing their service in the field, were mustered out, and immediately entered the Institution. The number belonging to this record is 34. Some of them suffered severely in prisons and on battle-fields, and some only brought back mutilated forms for the service of the Church.

We cannot contemplate but with profound admiration the names of some of the soldiers of Newton, accompanied in the Record published by the town with the information—"Re-enlisted." The names so designated are forty-five in number. And this designation implies a patriotic and self-denying spirit worthy of all praise. These men were not moved to enlistment by the romance of war. They had suffered the hardships of the camp, and tried the perils of the battle-field. They knew to what they were exposing themselves. They had hearts that had felt, and eyes that had wept, and many of them turned away from homes they loved, to encounter again the sober experiences of the conflict. But they were moved by a spirit that could not be conquered. Their love of freedom was too real to be crushed out by difficulties and hardships. And so, honorably discharged from a briefer service, or cured of sicknesses or of wounds, the fruit of former exposure, like true patriots, they rushed into the deadly fray again. How touching is the brief record attached to some of these names, — "Re-enlisted — killed." They made a second offering of their lives to their country. The sacrifice, cheerfully made, was accepted, and their names were delivered over to the immortal honor which pertains to those who die for their country.

No statistical tables can give an adequate idea of the Herculean efforts incident to the demands of this period of active conflict. Patriotism and its work can no more be reduced to the estimate of figures, than moral truths can be submitted to mathematical demonstration. Every house and home felt the tension. The profoundest sufferings were endured in silence and in tears. Many a fireside was visited by bitter bereavement; but the widow and the orphan, with a noble patriotism, forbore to repine. Citizens of various ranks, without asking to be paid for their services, performed tedious journeys, incurred heavy expenses, ministered to the sick and wounded soldiers, or looked after the wants of their families at home, with a watchfulness that never slept, with a zeal that never tired. The amount paid by the town and by individuals for military purposes, from the beginning of the war to February, 1865, — near the close, — was $138,457.02; of this sum, $46,918.92 was afterward refunded to the town by acts of the Legislature. Perhaps, taking all things into the account, as much more was contributed in a thousand various ways, of which no account was ever kept, and no record could be made.

We contemplate with deep interest the fact that the men of Newton were represented in nearly every kind of service, and that their valor won or their blood consecrated many of the most important fields during the entire war. The above record, in connection with the catalogue of the volunteers for three years, published by the town, shows to what extent the soldiers of Newton distinguished themselves by their bravery and self-denial, their hardships and sufferings, cheerfully endured for the salvation of their country. Where the exigencies were most pressing, where the battle raged most fiercely, where most was to be ventured in the conflict, — there were they. They were numbered with the infantry, the cavalry, the light battery, the heavy artillery, and the sharpshooters. They were in the army and in the navy, in the signal and provost departments. They were employed as surgeons, assistant surgeons, musicians, chaplains, officers, and privates. They were in the regiments of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, New York, and Pennsylvania. In gathering recruits, in the field of carnage, in prisons, in storming rebel positions, on picket duty, in the hospitals, on the march, — who were more sure to be found? Who more prudent to plan, more prompt to act, more patient to endure, more ready to sacrifice? On the most trying occasions, it was their lot to be with the foremost, in danger and in death. In Gettysburg and Antietam, in Spottsylvania, Fredericksburg, and at Lookout Mountain, we find their record among the killed and wounded. In the prisons at Salisbury, Richmond, and Danville, their names are written with those of the suffering captives. Among the recruiting officers gathering colored troops on the plantations, one of them fell by the hand of a ruthless murderer. Some died amid the smoke of battle, invoking with their last breath a blessing on their country. Some, wounded, lay suffering in the open field, the blue heavens above them their only shelter; the rains and the dews their only refreshment, till friendly hands sought them out and cared for them, or death came to their relief. Some lingered in hospitals, showing by their patient demeanor that they did not regret the sacrifices they had made for so righteous and worthy a cause. Some returned home with mutilated forms or broken constitutions, to be still honored and useful in church or state, or, after lingering a while among their friends, living examples of a noble patriotism, to sink into premature graves. And every year the honored number of these faithful men grows less and less.

None who were witnesses will ever forget the scene, when, on a sultry afternoon in July, soon after the battle of Gettysburg, in one of the churches of Newton, a crowded assembly was gathered to attend a rare and most impressive funeral. In front of the pulpit, supported on four biers, lay the forms of four young soldiers who had been stricken down in battle. The caskets in which they were deposited were richly adorned with flowers. The bright sun, shaded off by the green blinds of the church, shed a cheerful illumination over the auditory. Several clergymen were present, to participate in the exercises. Weeping friends of the deceased, in great numbers, gathered in their weeds of mourning, painfully interested in that strange spectacle,—the like of which had never been seen in the ancient town of Newton. Words of graceful explanation of the circumstances of the death of the young men, and the recovery of their remains, were offered by one who had left no effort untried, during all the war, to relieve the inconveniences and sufferings of the soldiers in the field, or to provide for their needy families at home. Patriotic utterances and Christian consolations, hymns and fervent prayers, and the precious comforts of the Word of God, for more than an hour held the rapt attention of the audience. As the congregation, at the close, passed before the forms of the dead, they were nerved with new purpose to save their beloved country from the hands of those who would trample in the dust its noble institutions, and whose guilty uprising had deprived it of so many in the flower of their youth and the glory of their ripper age. That silent spectacle of the faces of the dead was more impressive than the most powerful eloquence. And when the funeral knell rung out on the summer air, and was echoed by the green hills, while the procession wound its solemn way to the beautiful cemetery to deposit the precious trust,—the dirge for the dead and the tears of the living opened channels of patriotic feeling in every heart, and impressed upon every beholder the truthfulness of the classic maxim,—

"Dulce et decorum est pro patriâ mori."

The soldiers required not only food and care for the body, but also the refreshment of living waters for the soul. And none can be ignorant how much was done by a citizen of Newton, then an active and efficient Secretary of the American Tract Society, to furnish the soldiers at the front with an abundance of religious and other attractive reading. Leaving the peaceful work of his office in Boston, he went in person from tent to tent, and from hospital to hospital, carrying the words of comfort to the dying and the sick; acting, unpaid and uncommissioned, the part of a chaplain and a good Samaritan; writing letters for the disabled and the dying; pointing the departing soul to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world; and in comforting and delicate words communicating to the bereaved the sad intelligence of the sorrows that had come upon them, and the promises of Him who has engaged to be the God and Judge of the widow, and the Father of the fatherless. Probably none will ever know what quantities of secular and religious reading were sent to the hospitals and the tents through this agency, or how many solitary hours and homesick hearts were cheered by these timely and welcome provisions.

It is an interesting fact that while Boston, and many other cities and towns in the State of Massachusetts linger in the work of rearing a suitable memorial of the patriotic dead, — now more than five years since the close of the war, — Newton was one of the earliest towns in the Commonwealth to erect a monument to the brave men who imperilled their lives for the welfare of their country. Long before the smoke of battle had cleared away, while the soldiers were still bivouacked on the Southern fields and arming themselves for fresh encounters, — the beautiful shaft which commemorates the “names that were not born to die,” was raised near the entrance of the cemetery, on a swell of ground which seemed to have been formed by nature to receive so distinguished an ornament. On account of its rare location, it is sure to meet the curious eyes of visitors who come to this city of the dead. It is in all respects a fitting memorial of men who loved their country, and stands, a grateful token in remembrance of their deeds. The shaft is accompanied, in another part of the same lot, by a marble tablet, on which are inscribed the names of the men whom their fellow-citizens delighted to honor. The monument was dedicated on a brilliant summer day, — July 23, 1864, — when the green foliage decked the earth as with triumphal laurels, and the mild airs whispered around a tuneful requiem. It was consecrated with prayer and song, and the eloquence of Newton's best and bravest men. And there it stands, — a tribute alike to the worth of the noble dead, and a witness to the affection of a grateful people, who by this silent testimonial claim to tell the ages to come that they were and ever will be faithful, loving, and true. As morning reddens and as evening fades around the resting-place of the departed, and as, in spite of the varying seasons, the Soldiers' Monument still lifts its graceful proportions, unmoved, towards Heaven, it may be regarded as symbolizing the stern resolve of Newton men, under all political circumstances that may arise, to stand steadfast to the principles of the Constitution and the Union; to accept no compromise with tyranny and oppression; to sanction no division of the States of this glorious country; and to live and die where the broad banner of Freedom wraps its sacred folds around both the living and the dead.

It is a fact not without interest, that on a Sabbath day, early in this terrible conflict, news was brought to the house of God of confusion and disaster that had befallen the Union armies. Promptly in all the churches of Newton the regular services were laid aside. It was deemed an equally proper act of worship, in which all could engage, to prepare lint and bandages for the wounded, and to collect and put in readiness for transportation such luxuries and delicacies of food and cordials as the emergency would allow, to be forwarded with the next rising sun to the suffering troops. Stalwart men, and ever-true and faithful women, and children, with willing hands and downcast eyes, — all did what they could. Animated by the spirit of the occasion and by love for the threatened interests of freedom, the heart and the hand wrought harmoniously and brought forth valuable results. That was a rare Sabbath. May we not believe it was acceptable to the Lord our God; far more fitting for the service of the Great Creator than a day devoted to empty forms and solemn pageants? Few words were spoken. Soul communicated with soul, in silent agony, chiefly through the eloquence of silence and tears. Earnest prayers ascended and encouraging words occasionally dropped from the lips of the preachers, who joined in similar employment with their people, and the motive and the exigency consecrated the work. And towards evening the services closed only with the hymn, written in his early youth, by a resident of Newton and for twelve years and a half the pastor of one of its churches, —

“My country, 'tis of thee.”

Amid such scenes, and burdened by such apprehensions, all hearts and all voices, doubtless joined most fervently in the closing stanza, —

“Our fathers’ God, to thee,
Author of liberty,
To thee we sing;
Long may our land be bright
With freedom’s holy light;
Protect us by thy might,
Great God, our King!”

In this autumn of the year 1870, the old military spirit of Newton has blossomed afresh in the organization of a military company of sixty-one young men, officered, at least in part, by heroes who have survived the perils of battle, and who recognize the true philosophy of the maxim, “In peace prepare for war.”

This sketch may be appropriately closed in the words of one of our own patriotic citizens, who has nobly illustrated in his life what he has uttered with his lips or written with his pen: “All that we are, or hope to be, is involved in the Union. Founded to insure domestic tranquillity and to provide for the common defence, it is as necessary now as when its foundation stones were laid by the wisdom and cemented by the blood of our fathers.”

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

No public interest of the town has been more generously promoted than the schools.

Within the last six years, elegant school-buildings have been erected in each of the eight districts, at a cost of more than $230,000, which, with the High-School edifice, give the town the very first rank among the towns of the State in respect to school accommodations.

The schools are all liberally furnished with maps, apparatus and other appliances, and all of the Grammar Schools, with the High School, are provided with pianos. The total value of the school property of the town is $330,000.

The amount appropriated March, 1870, for the support of schools for the current year was $54,000, and for incidental purposes, $12,000, being about $20 for each child between the ages of 5 and 15 years; an amount equalled by only a very few other towns or cities, and being more than one third of the entire appropriation for town purposes.

The whole number of public schools is 42; viz., 1 High, 8 Grammar, 15 Intermediate, and 18 Primary.

Fifty-six teachers are employed; viz., 1 High-School principal, 1 sub-master, 8 Grammar masters, 3 High-School assistants, 9 Grammar-School assistants, 15 Intermediate, 18 Primary, and 1 Music-Teacher. the regular course of instruction covers 13 years; to wit, Primary 2 years, Intermediate 3 years, Grammar 4 years, High-School 4 years. The latter school provides both an English and a classical course, and affords as ample and varied facilities for a complete education as can be had in any high school or academy in the State. Classes are promoted regularly at the commencement of each year.

German and Painting, extra branches. No other extras.

Board and Tuition bills will be presented semi-annually, in advance.

The school-year consists of forty weeks. There are two short recesses: one at the holidays and one in the spring.

For particulars address Miss JULIA A. WILSON, NEWTON, MASS.

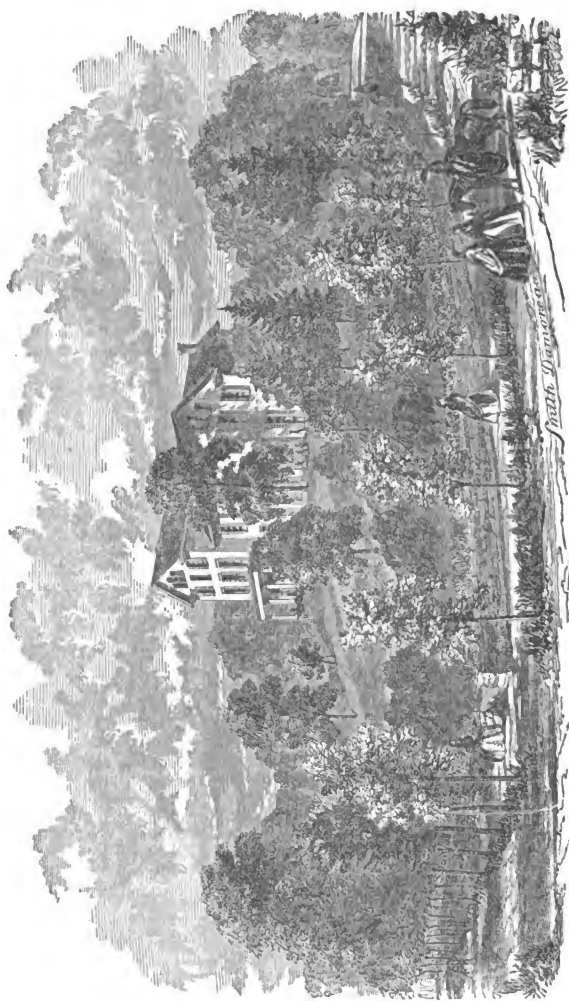

MISS SPEAR'S SCHOOL.

Hyde's Block.

This school is designed to furnish instruction in common and higher English branches, and languages. It consists of three classes: junior, comprising all pupils who require instruction in common English studies; and the middle and senior, in which the time is devoted entirely to the higher English branches, and languages. All pupils are expected to complete the studies of the junior class before commencing the more advanced course of study, but are promoted from class to class as rapidly as their ability and progress will allow. Special attention paid to backward scholars. Requirements for admission to the junior class: a knowledge of the rudiments of arithmetic (mental and written), reading, spelling, and the outlines of geography. Number of scholars limited to twenty. Private classes are formed for advanced scholars in the languages. The school-year is divided into four terms, of ten weeks each.

In the same building, the Preparatory School, for children under 11 years of age, taught by Miss H. M. NICHOLS, for several years teacher in the public schools of Newton, offers special advantages for younger scholars.

LASELL FEMALE SEMINARY, AUBURNDALE, MASS.

REV. CHARLES W. CUSHING, A.M., Principal.

FOUNDED 1851.

LASELL FEMALE SEMINARY.

This Institution was founded in 1851, by the late Professor Edward Lasell. It is located in the beautiful village of Auburndale, Mass., on the line of the Boston and Albany Railroad, ten miles from Boston, and within eight hours' ride of the cities of New York and Albany.

It is the design of the Institution to provide for an education in its broad and true sense ; not physical, mental, or moral alone, but education embracing all of these, as all true education must. Young ladies will not be allowed to crowd the intellect to the injury of the body, nor to educate the intellect or body to the neglect of the heart.

One aim constantly kept in view is the health of students.

The tendency of the present system of educating, both in public and private schools, is to overtax the memory and overwork the brain so as to shatter the nervous system, and impair, if not ruin the health.

It is the aim of this Institution, not only to avoid breaking down the health of students, but to restore those who have been partially broken.

The Music, Instrumental and Vocal, is under the care of Professor G. D. Wilson, well known as a popular composer, as well as a successful teacher. No institution in the country furnishes better advantages than this for acquiring an education in Music.

Professor A. Morand, assisted by Professor P. Morand of the Latin School and Girls' High and Normal Schools of Boston, has charge of the French. In this, as in other departments, students will find the best of instruction.

Under the care of Miss Jacoby, a highly educated German lady, students will find the best advantages for the study of the German language.

Painting and drawing are taught with great care and success by a superior artist.

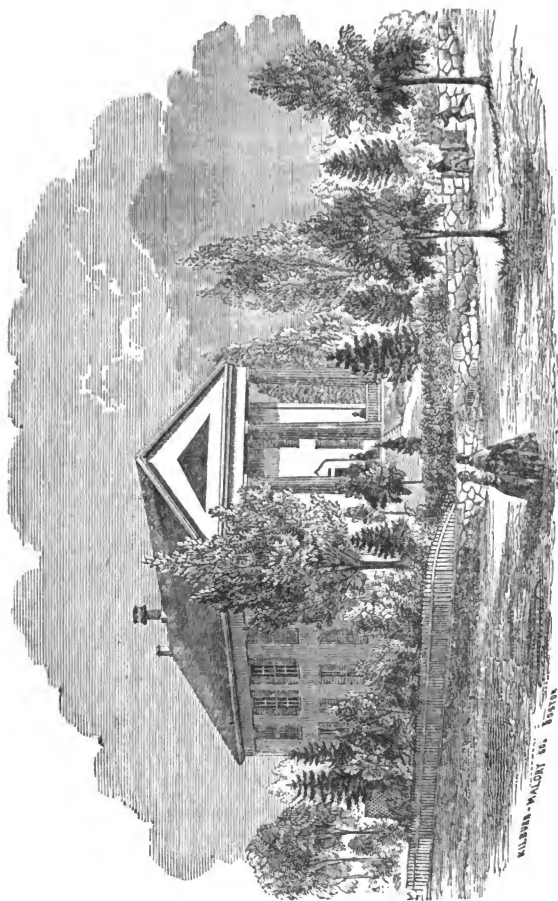

While much attention is given to what constitutes the ornamental part of education, there is no neglect of the common branches. No student will be allowed to neglect the rudiments of a good English education for the sake of pursuing higher branches.

Mineral Spring. — A most valuable Chalybeate Spring has recently been discovered on grounds connected with the Seminary.

Dr. Hayes, of Boston, State Assayer, pronounces it one of the best tonic waters he has ever analyzed.

Several eminent physicians have declared the water, in their opinion, unsurpassed for kidney difficulties, and such diseases as young ladies from fifteen to twenty years are often afflicted with. Many young ladies have found very great benefit from the use of these waters.

WEST NEWTON ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL.

NATHANIEL T. ALLEN, Principal.

JAMES T. ALLEN, JOSEPH A. ALLEN, GEORGE E. ALLEN, Associate Principals.

WEST NEWTON ENGLISH AND CLASSICAL SCHOOL.

Principal. — Nathaniel T. Allen.

Associate Principals. — James T. Allen, Joseph A. Allen, George E. Allen.

This School, for both sexes, is situated in the village of West Newton, Mass., on the line of the Boston and Albany Railroad, nine miles from Boston, and within two minutes' walk from the station.

The Institution is conducted in three distinct Departments, — the Academic, the Training School, and the Primary; by means of which regular and systematic instruction is provided for pupils of all ages, according to methods specially adapted to each.

The course of study embraces every branch of a thorough English education, together with the Ancient and Modern Languages; and, while particular attention is given to preparation for College, and for Mercantile and Scientific pursuits, it is equally the aim of the Teachers to impart careful and accurate instruction in the common branches.

There is a large and well-appointed Gymnasium for boys, connected with the School, and all scholars, boys and girls, have daily physical exercises.

Special attention is paid to the subject of Manners and Morals.

Provision is also made for pupils who require direct personal instruction, as in the case of exceptionally backward scholars, or those pursuing an advanced course of study, or of foreigners; and the latter will find among our teachers those who speak French, German, Spanish, Portuguese, and Italian.

SCHOOL-YEAR. — The school-year begins on the second Wednesday in September, and consists of three terms, usually of fourteen, thirteen, and twelve weeks, respectively; but the present year of fifteen, thirteen, and eleven weeks. There is a vacation of two weeks at Christmas, and another of one week early in April; and a recess, at the time of the State Thanksgiving, from the afternoon of Wednesday to the following Monday morning.

FAMILY PUPILS. — For Family Pupils, the charges are $400 for the school-year, payable in due proportions at the beginning of each term. This includes tuition in all ordinary English branches, also board, washing (twelve pieces each week), and a seat at Church. Extra washing charged at the rate of seventy-five cents per dozen. All other charges are as for day pupils. The regular terms for foreigners, ignorant of the English language, are $550 per annum, which secures special individual instruction for the school-year, in all branches except Drawing, Music, and Dancing; and board and washing through the full year of fifty-two weeks. Pupils are not received for a less period than one year from date of entering, unless by special arrangement; and no deductions are made for absence or premature withdrawal, except in the case of severe or prolonged illness.

Every pupil must be provided with spoon, fork, napkins and ring, towels, an umbrella, slippers, and a pair of blankets, — each article to be distinctly marked in full.

2 Court Square, Boston, and Newton Centre.

NEWTON THEOLOGICAL INSTITUTION.

The Newton Theological Institution was founded in 1825, though its charter was given the following year. By the first code of rules and regulations, adopted in May, 1826, it was provided that "the regular course shall occupy three years, and embrace Biblical Literature, Ecclesiastical History, Biblical Theology, Pastoral Duties, and, in short, the various studies and exercises appropriate to a theological institution," &c. The general purpose of the seminary is clearly set forth by this language, and has always been the same. It aims to give young men a good theological education for the ministry. Though founded and sustained by members of Baptist Churches, it is open to men of all denominations who are candidates for the Christian ministry.

It has three public buildings, viz.: Colby Hall, comprising a chapel, reading-room, library, and three lecture-rooms; Farwell Hall, containing rooms for forty-eight students, each student having two rooms, one for study and one for sleep; the whole building heated by steam; and the Mansion-house, which affords accommodation for boarding in a club at cost, and for students who are married.

Five professors compose the Faculty, viz.,—

President, and Professor of Theology and Christian Ethics.—Alvah Hovey, D.D.

Professor of Church Polity, Homiletics and Pastoral Duties.—Galusha Anderson, D.D.

Professor of Church History.—Heman Lincoln, D.D.

Professor of Biblical Interpretation, Old Testament.—Oakman S. Stearns, D.D.

Professor of Biblical Interpretation, New Testament.—Ezra P. Gould, A.M.

The Institution is beautifully located in Newton Centre, at a convenient distance from Boston, on a branch of the Boston, Hartford, and Erie Railroad; the trains leaving the city from the station of the Boston and Albany Railroad. The anniversary takes place on the second Wednesday of June, and the week previous is occupied in a public examination of the classes. The academic year begins on the Friday after the first Wednesday of September.

Besides three public buildings named above, the institution has two professors' houses, about fifty acres of land, and an endowment of nearly $250,000. An effort is now making to increase this endowment, and it is expected that ample means will be secured to make the seminary all that its best friends can reasonably expect. Communications in respect to the finances of the school should be made to Thomas Nickerson, Esq., Treasurer, and those in respect to other matters to the President, Alvah Hovey, Newton Centre.

HOME FOR BOYS.

Pine Farm, West Newton.

This Institution is under the patronage and care of the Children's Aid Society of Boston, as also the Home for Girls, at Newton Centre. The inmates are mostly such boys as are recommended by Rufus R.

JAMES F. C. HYDE, AUCTIONEER AND REAL ESTATE AGENT,
2 Court Square, Boston, and Newton Centre.

Cook, the General Agent of the Society, who has, for many years, devoted himself to missionary work among friendless children, who are brought before the police-courts, or otherwise in need of reformatory care. The institution combines a home, school, and farm employment, and is under the immediate care of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Washburn, farmer and matron; Miss Maria Washburn, teacher; Miss Mary Washburn, assistant; and Miss Roberts, housekeeper. The children are those who, when admitted, are either criminally inclined, or have actually entered the broad avenue of crime. The whole work is strictly reformatory, and it is sought to provide all the advantages of a Christian home, until suitable places can be provided for the boys in good families. The results of the enterprise have thus far been very encouraging. About thirty boys are kept at the Home.

President. — Governor Wm. Claflin.

Vice-Presidents. — Messrs. Geo. Bemis, M. S. Scudder, and Nathaniel Thayer, and others.

Treasurer. — Edward Jackson.

Directors. — E. P. Bond, Jas. Freeman Clark, Abner Kingman, Rufus Ellis, Mrs. Furber, Mrs. C. G. Loring, Miss Lowell, and many other well-known philanthropists.

HOME FOR GIRLS.

Newton Centre.

This Home is about two miles distant from the Home for Boys. It is charmingly situated, and seems to have fully recovered from the severe loss suffered, by the destruction of the former Home by fire, in 1868. In many respects, this institution is quite in contrast with the Pine Farm School, but only as a family of thirty girls may be supposed to differ from one of the same number of boys.

This Home does for girls what the other does for boys, and is under the care of the same society.

Both these charities are largely supported by the contributions of the people of Newton, and have often been made the objects of festivals and fairs.

The matron is Mrs. Pomeroy, well known for her self-sacrificing efforts in the hospitals during the war, and she conducts the home with a devotion and enthusiasm which gives it a very extensive encouragement and sympathy. As these schools are wholly supported by voluntary contributions, our citizens should not allow so noble a charity to languish for want of material aid.

There are few institutions of this kind which receive the sympathy and assistance of so many benevolent persons. Although the children are taken from the worst classes of society, and are not admitted on account of poverty or friendlessness alone, yet the reports from those who have been provided with homes, fully repay and justify all that was hoped from the establishment of these homes. It would be a great blessing to the community, and a means of saving hundreds of children who now become lost in crime, if such institutions were multiplied throughout the State and country.

The Eliot Church, in Newton, was organized by an Ecclesiastical Council called for that purpose, July 1, 1845.

The Church was composed of thirty-seven members, of whom thirty-one were from the First Congregational Church in Newton.

The first church edifice was dedicated at the same time, with appropriate services.

The Rev. William S. Leavitt, having been invited Nov. 4, 1845, to become the pastor of the church and society worshipping with it, was ordained Dec. 3, 1845.

In the spring of 1849, the house of worship, being found insufficient to accommodate the rapidly increasing congregation, was enlarged by the addition of twenty-eight pews, making the whole number of pews ninety-two; and was re-opened for public worship on the 13th day of May, 1849.

Mr. Leavitt continued pastor until Nov. 8, 1853, nearly eight years, when, at his request, a Council was convened, and his pastoral relation with the church and society was dissolved.

The church remained without a pastor until Oct. 25, 1854, when Rev. Lynan Cutler was installed its pastor.

By reason of failing health, he was enabled to preach once each day on eight successive Sabbaths. He then asked for a suspension of his labors for three months, which was granted; but he continued to decline, and died April 28, 1855.

Again the church and society were without a pastor until June 11, 1856, when the present pastor, J. W. Wellman, D. D., was installed.

The present house of worship was commenced about the first of January, 1860.

The corner-stone was laid, with appropriate services, on the annual State Fast Day, April 5, 1860.

The house, having been completed, was dedicated to the worship of God on the annual State Fast Day, April 4, 1861.

His failing health caused him to give up his parish, and he was succeeded by Rev. Edward J. Young, who, after twelve years' faithful services, resigned his pulpit to accept a professorship at Harvard University in 1869.

The growth and prosperity of the society will probably, at no distant day, induce the building of a new place of worship.

For more than eighty years after the incorporation of Newton as a town, the only established place for public worship was at Newton Centre. Consulting their own convenience, the few families then residing in the westerly part of the town began to have occasional preaching in their own neighborhood as early as 1760, and finally resolved to hold a separate meeting during the winter seasons. As the result of this movement, a meeting-house thirty by forty-three feet was erected in the summer of 1764, and a minister was hired to keep the public school during the winter months and preach on the Sabbath, — a plan which was attended with some degree of success.

In 1778, the "West Precinct" so called, embracing the territory now known as West Newton, Auburndale and vicinity, was incorporated by an Act of the General Assembly as a separate parish; and three years later, on the 21st of October, 1781, twelve brethren, most of them from the First Church of Newton, were organized as a church, by Rev. Joseph Jackson, of Brookline. Having assented to the covenant, which was read in public, they voted themselves a Congregational Church, according to the Cambridge platform, and declared their acceptance of the leading doctrines of the Assembly's Shorter Catechism.

Mr. WILLIAM GREENOUGH, a native of Boston, and a graduate of Yale College, having been invited to the pastorate of the church and society, was ordained November 8, 1781, Rev. John Lathrop, pastor of the Second Church in Boston, preaching the sermon, Rev. Jacob Cushing of Waltham giving the charge, and Rev. Joseph Jackson of Brookline, the right hand of fellowship.

In 1812, the church edifice being found insufficient to accommodate the increasing congregation, it was enlarged by an addition of twelve feet to the main structure.

Mr. Greenough's ministry having continued nearly half a century, his advancing age and declining health led him to propose the settlement of a colleague. The proposition being accepted, Mr. LYMAN GILBERT was chosen, and ordained July 2, 1828.

In the year 1831, the house was again remodelled, the galleries being removed, the square pews giving place to slips, and various other improvements being introduced. During the following year a vestry was completed in the basement of the meeting-house; and six years after, in 1838, additional alterations and improvements were made in the house itself. On the 26th of March, 1848, public worship was held for the last time in the old meeting-house, the edifice having been sold to the town, which has ever since used it as a town-hall and school-building. The present meeting-house was commenced in 1847, and dedicated March 29, 1848.

Mr. Gilbert's pastorate continued till January 2, 1856, twenty-six years and six months, when a mutual council was convened, and his pastoral relation was dissolved.

On the same day, and by the same council, Mr. JOSEPH P. DRUMMOND was ordained as the successor of Mr. Gilbert. In April, 1857, Mr. Drummond, whose impaired health compelled retirement from active service, tendered his resignation, which, after a delay of several months, was finally accepted, and his pastoral connection was formally dissolved on the 12th of November, having continued only a year and ten months. On the 23d of the same month Mr. Drummond was called to his heavenly home at the age of thirty-three.

JAMES F. C. HYDE, AUCTIONEER AND REAL ESTATE AGENT,
2 Court Square, Boston, and Newton Centre.

Meanwhile the church and society had invited Rev. GEORGE B. LITTLE, of Bangor, Maine, to become their pastor. The invitation having been accepted, Mr. Little was installed November 12, 1857.

In consequence of the failure of health, Mr. Little tendered his resignation of the pastoral office in February, 1860, with the view of seeking relief and restoration abroad; but not being accepted, the resignation was withdrawn, and leave of absence was granted, in accordance with the wishes of the church and society. Mr. Little went to Europe in March, but his continued decline rendered his immediate return a necessity after an absence of only two months. On the 21st of June he again tendered his resignation, but it being evident that his life was rapidly passing away, the church declined action in the matter. His decease took place on the 20th of July, at the age of thirty-eight years, his pastorate here having continued two years and eight months.

The church and society, after due consideration, extended a unanimous invitation to Rev. HENRY J. PATRICK, of Bedford, to become their pastor. The invitation was accepted, and Mr. Patrick was installed September 26, 1860. With the present month, September, 1870, Mr. Patrick will have completed the tenth year of his pastoral connection with the church and society; and the latter nearly eighty-nine years of interesting and eventful history.

In 1863 the church became the legatee of a generous benefaction by the last will and testament of one of its members, Miss SARAH BAXTER, whose decease occurred in that year. In the distribution of her estate in aid of various benevolent objects, she bequeathed to the church the sum of five thousand dollars, on condition that it be increased to eight thousand dollars, the whole to be used in providing a parsonage for the use of the pastor and his successors forever. The condition was complied with: a commodious parsonage was erected in 1866, and appropriately dedicated in the spring of 1867.

During the present year [1870] the church edifice has been repaired at an expense of more than three thousand dollars; being repainted within and without, the walls frescoed, the floor carpeted, and the pews upholstered anew; the organ removed from the gallery to a recess built for it in the wall at the side of the pulpit, and a new pulpit put in place of the old one.

For a time, preaching was continued in a hall, until the building was burned, and they were left without any place for worship. Nothing more was done until the summer of 1866, when efforts were made to erect a house of worship. A fine lot was secured on Central Street — not then laid out — through the generosity of Anthony Holbrook, the oldest member of the church, and the cornerstone for a chapel was laid on the 25th of December, 1866. A very neat house was built during the winter and spring, and dedicated to the worship of Almighty God in the following May. The church was supplied the first year by Rev. Luther T. Townsend. Rev. Henry Lummis was appointed pastor in 1867, and Rev. Chas. W. Cushing in 1868 and 1869. The church is prosperous.

At the time of the formation of this church, in 1664, Newton was a part of Cambridge, and bore the name of Cambridge Village. The original name of the whole district now occupied by Cambridge, Newton, and portions of other towns adjoining, was New Town. At the time of the founding of Harvard College, in 1638, this name was changed to Cambridge. The part of the town which lay on the south side of Charles river, and which is now Newton and Brighton, was known by the Indian name Nonantum. Religious meetings began to be held on this side of the river, in 1654, from which time Nonantum was called Cambridge Village. It bore this name until 1679, when it was set off from Cambridge and organized as an independent town. It was then called New Cambridge, until 1691, when it resumed the original name, New Town, which was gradually altered to Newtown and Newton.

In 1656 the inhabitants of Cambridge Village had become so numerous as to form a distinct congregation for public worship. There was a hall in the house of Edward Jackson, which stood near the dividing line between Newton and Brighton, in which their meetings may have been held.

In 1660, the first church edifice was erected in the old burying-ground on Centre Street, and upon the organization of the church in 1664, the first pastor was ordained, — Rev. John Eliot, Jr., son of the Apostle Eliot.

The second church edifice was erected in 1698, on the westerly side of Dedham road, opposite the burial place, and very near the spot now occupied by the residence of Gardner Colby, Esq.

The third church edifice was built on the location now occupied by the society, and dedicated November 5, 1721.

JAMES F. C. HYDE, AUCTIONEER AND REAL ESTATE AGENT,
3 Court Square, Boston, and Newton Centre.

The fourth church edifice was built in 1805; and in 1845, thirty members were dismissed, who formed the Eliot Church at Newton.

The fifth church edifice, now standing on the site occupied by the two preceding ones, was dedicated in 1847; and in December following, Rev. D. L. Furber, the present pastor, was ordained.

In October, 1781, twenty-five persons were dismissed, who formed the Second Church in West Newton.

During the existence of this church, it has had eight pastors, as follows:—

Rev. John Eliot, Jr., from	1664 to 1668.
“ Nehemiah Hobart, from	1674 to 1712.
“ John Cotton, from	1714 to 1757.

In its history of ninety years, the church has had six pastors. Rev. Caleb Blood received a call to the pastorate ten days after the organization, and was released from his office Nov. 19, 1787. Mr. Joseph Grafton was ordained June 18, 1788, and continued in the pastoral office until his death, after almost half a century of faithful service,

December 16, 1836. Rev. F. A. Willard was settled as junior pastor, on account of Mr. Grafton's age and infirmities, Nov. 25, 1835. After Mr. Grafton's death, Mr. Willard remained as pastor, until July 29, 1838. The church having been greatly embarrassed by the financial troubles of 1837, no pastor was settled for more than three years after Mr. Willard's resignation; but, in the meantime, Professor H. J. Ripley was acting pastor, from November 30, 1838 to September 4, 1840. Rev. S. F. Smith, D.D., commenced his labors January 1, 1842, and continued them until June 30, 1854. Rev. O. S. Stearns, D.D., was pastor from September 23, 1855, to May 31, 1868. Rev. W. N. Clarke's pastorate commenced May 16, 1869.

The church has had two houses of worship. The first, on the east side of the Pond, was erected in 1781, but the interior was not completed until 1795. Rough boards served for seats and pulpit, and the house was in use some seven years before the walls were plastered. Fear of debt caused the long delay. The house was enlarged in 1802. When the church was about to leave it, to occupy the new one, it was expected that Mr. Grafton would preach a sermon suitable to the occasion, but he died two days before the appointed Sabbath, and the last service held in the old house was his funeral. The present house of worship was dedicated a few days later, December 22, 1836, and has been twice remodelled,—in 1856 and in 1869.

The church was organized with 38 members. During Mr. Blood's pastorate, 54 were added; during Mr. Grafton's, up to Mr. Willard's coming, 554; during Mr. Willard's, 13. In the interval which followed, including the time of Dr. Ripley's service, 36 were added; in Dr. Smith's pastorate, 104; in the interval which followed, 15; in Dr. Stearns's pastorate, 201; in the interval which followed, 5; since the beginning of Mr. Clarke's ministry, 27. The number of members from the beginning is 1,047.

Nine Baptist churches in the vicinity have been considerably indebted to this church for their constituent membership.

CHESTNUT HILL CHAPEL. (UNITARIAN.)

(ORGANIZED 1861.)

This chapel, with the small school-house attached, was the liberal gift of the late Thomas Lee, Esq., of Boston, to the families residing at Chestnut Hill. The property was placed in the hands of trustees, with authority to sell and devote the proceeds to charity, when no longer used for religious or school purposes.

The chapel was dedicated to Christian worship October 2, 1861, and Rev. W. Whitwell officiated as parson until his death. Services are held every Sabbath, at 11 o'clock, A.M., to which all are invited.

Pastor.—A. B. Muzzey.

Trustees.—Francis L. Lee, J. Eliot Cabot, and John Lowell.

LIBRARIES AND SOCIETIES.

NEWTON FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

(ORGANIZED, SEPT. 29, 1869.)

Library Building, Newton.

It contains 7,500 volumes.

Superintendent. — Geo. W. Bacon.

Librarians. — Miss Hannah James and Miss Cornelia Jackson.

Government is vested in a Board of eleven Managers; viz., Geo. W. Bacon, John C. Chaffin, Isaac T. Burr, J. Wiley Edmands, Geo. W. Farlow, John S. Farlow, A. B. Underwood, Joel H. Hills, Geo. S. Bulfinch, Geo. S. Harwood, and Abner L. Benyon.

Officers of the board are: —

President. — Geo. H. Jones.

Secretary. — Geo. S. Bullens.

Treasurer. — John C. Chaffin.

The first organized effort to establish this library was made in September, 1866, although much previous consideration had been given to the subject by our citizens.

The corner-stone was laid August 13, 1868, and the building was dedicated June 17, 1870. The cost has been for the building and fixtures about $37,000, and for books about $7,000, and about $500 have been expended for the reading-room.

All the benefits of the institution are free to the town, under such rules and regulations as are usually adopted.

SYNOPSIS OF RULES AND REGULATIONS.

The library is open every secular day, except legal holidays, and such other days as the managers may direct, from 10, A.M., to 8, P.M., but books are only delivered from 2 to 8, P.M.

Every inhabitant of the town is entitled to the use of the library on obtaining the endorsement of some responsible person known to the Superintendent or the Librarians, and signing an agreement to the rules and regulations.

Books can be retained seven or fourteen days, which time is indicated on the cover. If kept beyond this time, a fine of two cents for each day is to be collected.

All persons visiting the library or reading-room, for any purpose, are required to demean themselves quietly and to avoid loud or disturbing conversation.

The reading-room is open to the public from 8, A.M., to 9, P.M., and the same quiet and orderly conduct is required as in the library.

This institution has been made a success by the liberality and persistent effort and labor of the citizens of the village of Newton, with the desire that its benefits may be enjoyed by the present and future generations of the town, and that it may be a present and future power and honor to the citizens thereof.

THE WHEELER & WILSON SEWING-MACHINE, the best in the world. H. C. HAYDEN, Agent, 228 Washington St., Boston.

The large circulation which has been entered upon the records of the library during the first two months of its existence, is gratifying evidence that the result is to exceed the most sanguine expectations of its founders, and it is confidently hoped that its future necessities will be the subject of the fostering care of all our people.

It has funds sufficient for its maintenance to October, 1871; after that time its success and usefulness will depend upon the further liberality and fostering care of its friends.

NORTH VILLAGE FREE LIBRARY.

WEST NEWTON ATHENÆUM.

(ORGANIZED 1849.)

Chestnut Street, corner of Washington.

President.—H. B. Braman.

Vice-President.—D. C. Sanger.

Secretary.—Jas. T. Allen.

Treasurer.—E. C. Bond.

Directors.—Francis Tiffany, L. M. Fitch, J. D. Van Duzee, Stiles Frost, O. F. Lucas, Asabel Wheeler, Joseph W. Stone.

This valuable institution numbers among its founders some of our most eminent and highly distinguished citizens. Among those honored names, those of Horace Mann, William B. Fowle, Joseph S. Clarke, Cyrus Pierce, Dr. J. H. Brown, and J. W. Plympton appear. The institution, as originally established, contemplated an organization for the promotion of liberal culture and good-fellowship, as well as a library association.

The library consists of about 3,000 volumes. The number of permits to take out books (given only by a Director, and good for one year) for 1870, was 165.

Number of books taken out in 1869 was 9,019. Greatest number in one day, 170; in one month, 994.

Quite recently the association was the recipient of a gift of one thousand dollars from the late J. W. Plympton; and other funds from various sources have also been added.

NEWTON LOWER FALLS FREE LIBRARY.

(ORGANIZED 1869.)

This Library was established January 1st, 1869, for the free use of the community. All persons residing at Newton Lower Falls and vicinity have the liberty of availing themselves of its privileges each day of the week, except Sunday, from 10 o'clock, A.M., to 9 o'clock, P.M.

From January 1st, 1869, to July 1st, 1870, a period of eighteen months, 8,613 volumes were taken out by 414 persons.

THE WHEELER & WILSON SEWING-MACHINE, the best in the world. H. C. HAYDEN, Agent, 228 Washington St., Boston.

The Library was established, and is supported, by voluntary contributions. The gift of one dollar, or one accepted volume, entitles the donor to membership in the Library Association. This Association annually elects a Board of Trustees, to whom the care and the management of the Library are committed.

The catalogue contains the titles of 1,365 well-selected volumes; but this number is felt to be inadequate to meet the wants of the reading public. There is urgent need of a fresh supply of books, and it is hoped that this supply will be granted by friends who appreciate the blessing this Library has already been to the community.

Dr. F. D. Lord kindly renders valuable services as Librarian, and also generously gives the use of his premises for the Library.

The Trustees for the present year are Thomas Rice, Jr., M. N. Boyden, Allen Jordan.

Treasurer. — William Wallis.

Secretary. — William W. Jackson.

Librarian. — Dr. F. D. Lord.

NEWTON SUNDAY-SCHOOL UNION.

(ORGANIZED, DEC., 1838.)

The "Newton Sunday-School Union" was organized December 18, 1838. It originated in a desire, by a union of effort, to advance the cause of Sunday-school instruction, and by frequent meetings for prayer, and the discussion of practical questions relating to their work, to qualify the Superintendents and Teachers for successful labors.

The officers originally consisted of President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, and a Board of Directors, one from each school.

Vice-President.—Wiley G. Eaton.

Six schools were first represented in its membership. The first anniversary was held July 4, 1839, in a Grove at Newton Upper Falls. There was a large number present; a procession of children was formed, and a collation was prepared in the grove for all present.

An address was given by Mr. Bannister, of Auburndale; an address to the scholars by Mr. Eaton, of Newton Theological Seminary; one to teachers, by Rev. Mr. Babcock, of Dedham; and one to parents, by Rev. Prof. Sears.

The second anniversary was held at a grove in Newton Centre, July 4, 1840. The procession was composed of 800 or 900 from our own schools, and from 500 to 600 from adjoining towns. Between 2,000 and 3,000 persons were present. Music and a collation were enjoyed in the grove, and addresses were made by Rev. N. T. Burt of Charlestown, and William B. Tappan of Boston.

The third anniversary was held at the East Parish Meeting-house Rev. Mr. Furber's, July 5, 1841, and a collation had in the grove by the pond. An address was given by Rev. Mr. Mudge.

The fourth anniversary was held at the Methodist Episcopal Church, Upper Falls, with an address by Rev. Dr. Sears.

In 1849, a Colporteur was employed to labor in West Virginia, and afterwards, in Ohio, at a salary of $150 per year, from whom letters were received.

The 25th Anniversary of the Union was held in Eliot Church, October 16, 1863, the President, Albert Little, in the chair. An historical

The number of members who served their country during the late war was 123, six of whom were wounded, and nineteen of whom died.

The Union is now composed of nineteen schools, and quarterly meetings are held alternately at the different villages, and among various denominations. NEWTON HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

(ORGANIZED 1854)

Previous to the autumn of 1854, a number of the enterprising young men of Newton Centre had been accustomed to meet in each other's homes for the purpose of discussing the best methods of growing the different farm and garden crops, fruits, and flowers.

Having attained great proficiency in those ennobling pursuits, and wishing to show the results of their labor to their fellow-townpeople, they determined to hold a public exhibition, and, in September of 1854, the first one was held, at Lyceum Hall, Newton Centre.

THE WHEELER & WILSON SEWING-MACHINE, the best in the world. H. C. HAYDEN, Agent, 228 Washington St., Boston.

This exhibition was an eminent success, and had the effect of waking up such an interest in the whole town on the subject of horticulture that, on the evening of October 16, 1854, a public meeting was held at Lyceum Hall, and the Newton Horticultural Society permanently organized by the election of the following officers:—

Alfred Morse, President; John Ware, Jr., and Benj. W. Kingsbury, Vice-Presidents; Charles N. Brackett, Secretary; Henry Paul, Treasurer.

Since which time, the object of the society has been to stimulate a taste for improvement, not only in the mode of cultivating the products of mother earth, but improving the products themselves, and adapting them to our varied and increasing wants.

Exhibitions have usually been held in June and September of each year.

The record of the society shows that it was considered a great success to be enabled to exhibit fine specimens of Tennis fall lettuce, May 1st, 1855; asparagus and rhubarb, May 12; and new potatoes, July 22, of the same year.

Contrasting the present results of production and perfection attained, with the early efforts of the society, the whole town may well feel grateful to the Giver of all good for the early organization of so beneficent a society.

The present officers are:—

President.—Joseph H. Woodford.

Vice-Presidents—Henry Ross and Stiles Frost.

Secretary.—Fred. Davis.

Treasurer.—W. P. Haughton.

THE JERSEY-STOCK CLUB OF NEWTON

(ORGANIZED, JUNE, 1866.)

This is an association of gentlemen specially interested in Jersey cows, believing them to be the best for the purpose which induces the keeping one or more cows for family use.

The membership is limited, and the government is vested in a "Board of Control," chosen annually.

Bi-monthly meetings of the Club are held at the houses of members, to which reports are made on all matters of interest pertaining to the subject. The object and desire of the Club is to "promote the keeping, and improve the breeding of Jersey stock in Newton, and to maintain a perfect record of all such which is owned by the members."

The officers of the Club are:—

President.—George H. Jones.

Secretary and Treasurer.—James F. Edmands.

Executive Committee.—George Frost, John C. Chaffin, J. Cheeny Potter.

THE WHEELER & WILSON SEWING-MACHINE, the best in the world. H. C. HAYDEN, Agent, 228 Washington St., Boston.

These officers constitute The Board of Control. A similar organization has existed in Newton since June, 1866, which had a marked success, and was instrumental of much good. It was, however, cumbersome in its arrangements, and in some respects failed of securing its object. It was dissolved, previous to the organization of the present Club, by the general consent of the members.

The present organization promises to perpetuate the advantages of the former, and secure the benefits in a larger and more definite form,

INSTITUTION FOR SAVINGS IN THE TOWN OF NEWTON.

(INCORPORATED, JUNE 17, 1831.)

Office in the Newton National Bank.

President. — Geo. Hyde.

Secretary and Treasurer. — E. J. Collins.

Trustees. — Seth Davis, John Ward, J. F. C. Hyde, Isaac Hagar, Willard Marcy.

Committee of Investment. — Seth Davis, Geo. Hyde, J. F. C. Hyde, E. J. Collins.

Auditor. — Isaac Hagar.

Members. — Asa Cook, Isaac Hagar, J. B. H. Fuller, John Ward, Dustin Lancey, George Hyde, Seth Davis, Eben Stone, E. J. Collins, William Page, J. N. Bacon, M. S. Rice, J. F. C. Hyde, Wm. P. Houghton, Sewall Harding, Willard Marcy.

The design of this Institution is to afford to those who are desirous of saving their money, but have not acquired sufficient to purchase a share in the banks or a sum in public stocks, the means of employing their money to advantage without running the risk of losing it, as they are too frequently exposed to do by lending it to individuals, who either fail or defraud them. It is intended to encourage the industrious and prudent, and to induce those who have not hitherto been such, to lessen their unnecessary expenses, and to save and lay by something for a period of life when they will be less able to earn a support. To promote these desirable purposes, the following rules, among others, have been adopted: —

No person shall be permitted to deposit an amount exceeding one thousand dollars, nor less than one dollar.

Deposits may be made at the Treasurer's office at the Newton National Bank, but will not be put upon interest until the first Tuesday of the quarter succeeding the deposit. The quarters commence on the first Tuesdays of January, April, July, and October.

Twice every year, — namely, on the first Tuesday of January and July, — a dividend of interest of two and a half per cent, or two and a half dollars on a hundred, will be made. This will amount to five dollars on every hundred every year, and so a proportionable sum for any sum less or more than one thousand dollars.

Although only five per cent is promised yearly, yet, every fifth year, all the extra income which has not before been paid and divided will then be divided in just proportion to the length of time the money has been in, according to the by-laws; and nothing will be deducted from this extra income but the actual expenses of carrying on the business and taking care of the money.

The trustees will take no emolument or pay for their services, having undertaken it solely to promote the interest of the persons above described, who may put their money therein.

Those who do not choose to take their interest from time to time, may be assured that it shall be added to their capital, or sum put in, and shall be put upon interest after three months. Thus they will get compound interest on what they let remain, which they cannot do any other way by law. It is plain this mode of placing money will be safer than lending it to individuals.

But people may become sick, or otherwise want their money after they have put it in. It is provided that depositors may withdraw their money at any time by giving the Treasurer a few days' notice.

Money put in will be entered in a book of the Corporation, and also in a book to be given to those who put it in. This book will be the evidence of their property, and as valid as a note of hand. When moneys are called out, this book, given to the depositor, must be brought to the Treasurer to have the payment entered. Persons may take out the money themselves, or, in case of absence or sickness, it will be paid to their order properly witnessed and accompanied by the book.

If persons die, who own money in the Savings Bank, the money will go to their heirs, or to persons to whom they may have given it by will, with certainty.

Persons who put in money must sign the rules and agree to conform to them. This is necessary for the security of all parties.

No sums above one thousand dollars will be received at one time; and the Trustees have a right to pay off any depositor who has more than one thousand dollars in the society. This is because the object of the institution is to aid and assist the poorer and middling classes of society in putting their money out to advantage.

In 1870, the number of depositors was 964. Amount of deposits, $152,000.

NEWTON CEMETERY CORPORATION.

(ORGANIZED, APRIL 5, 1855.)

Seth Davis Esq. was chairman of the first meeting, and J. W. Plympton, Esq., was elected clerk, and re-elected each year until 1863, giving much time and valuable service to establish the cemetery. The following gentlemen composed the first Board of Trustees: Lemuel Crehore, Seth Davis, M. S. Rice, Henry Bigelow, J. E. Woodbridge, Barnas Sears, J. D. Towle. Dr. Henry Bigelow was elected President by the Trustees, and continued to hold the office, with great acceptance, until removed by death in 1865.

The present Trustees are M. S. Rice, J. F. C. Hyde, J. W. Stone, Otis Pettee, George H. Jones, W. P. Tyler, Stiles Frost, Thomas S. Williams, and M. T. Heywood. On the death of Dr. Bigelow, M. S. Rice, Esq., was elected President, and still holds the office.

J. W. Stone is the present Clerk, and H. L. Keyes Treasurer; Henry Ross has been Superintendent since April, 1861, and the success of the cemetery is largely due to his skill and judgment, and his devotion to its interests.

The projectors of the cemetery correctly understood the importance of suitable places for the burial of the dead, and appreciated the future necessities of the town.

M. S. Rice, Esq., is the only trustee who has held that office constantly since the organization, and his connection, as well as that of the other early trustees, has served to perpetuate the opinion of the first Board, that a complete organization and thorough construction would be in accordance with the requirements of the community. The trustees of later years have held these facts and requirements constantly in mind, and have made frequent purchases of land and large expenditures for general improvements. All the surveys and engineering work has been performed by M. S. Rice, Esq., and the corporation as well as the public are under obligations to him for the good judgment he has constantly displayed.

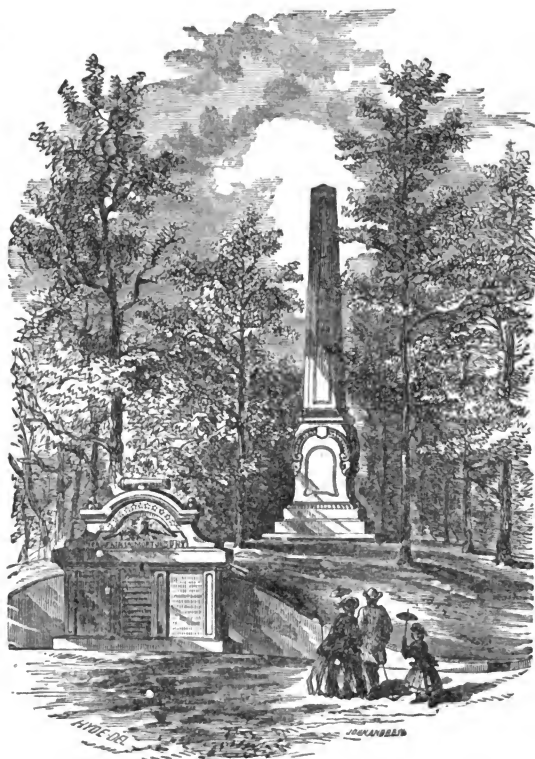

The completion of the new entrance and gateway is expected during the present year. The entire cost of this improvement will be about $7,500.

The trustees deem further improvements necessary, but do not feel warranted in entering upon them until there is a material increase in the sale of lots, this being the only source of income.

Nature has provided few spots in New England more suitable for cemetery purposes than this, and all residents of the town are equally interested in its improvement. The price for lots is very much less than at Mt. Auburn and Forest Hills; and as in those places good locations are fast being taken up, and prices advanced, it cannot reasonably be expected that at any time in the future, good locations in the Newton Cemetery can be as favorably secured as at present.

The Corporation now owns about eighty-two acres, which have cost about $11,000. The entire expenditure for land, buildings, gateway and entrance, implements, &c., has been about $28,000. The present number of proprietors is five hundred.

NEWTON BLACK BASS CLUB.

President. — W. N. Bartholomew.

Secretary and Treasurer. — E. M. Fowle.

This Club has been recently organized, and has leased from the State for twenty years, Wiswall's or Baptist Pond as it is sometimes called — containing about thirty-three acres, and situated at Newton Centre. The intention is to stock it with Black Bass from Plymouth, a fish of most excellent quality for the table, very gamey, affording most admirable sport to the scientific angler. This fish attains a good size, — from five to eight pounds, and is supposed to thrive in fresh water all through the North. They belong to the perch family, and in shape very much resemble the perch; the color is a very dark bronze, approaching black. The lessees have the entire control of the pond, subject to the supervision of the Commissioners of Inland Fisheries, and will not allow fishing of any kind in the pond for three or four years and then only with permits issued by the proper officer. The penalty for a violation of the law against such fishing may be a fine of fifty dollars and costs. The rent to be paid goes into the Town Treasury, and at the end of nineteen years even the members of the Club cannot fish, as the Commissioners provide that there shall be no fishing the twentieth year, that it may be well stocked for the public the twenty-first year, when all may fish. It is to be hoped that the experiment will prove a success, and that in a few years all our ponds and rivers, now so depleted of useful fish, may be stocked with Black Bass.

“OUR GIRLS.”

Published Monthly. For Girls and Boys.

A large, sixteen column journal, devoted almost exclusively to the interests of the girls of the United States, besides containing articles from the leading boy-writers; thus making it attractive and interesting to both sexes.

The only paper extant contributed to almost entirely by girls. Scarcely a number but that contains some choice article, poem, or sketch from some member of our talented corps of fair contributors, whose articles cannot fail to merit approbation, while they instruct as well as entertain.

CHOICE SKETCHES,
SENTIMENT, DELIGHTFUL POEMS,
SPIGY ARTICLES, EXCHANGE NOTICES,
MISCELLANEOUS READING, CRITIQUES, FEMALE SPORTS,
FASHION, SENSE, FICTION,
MIRTH,

And an inexhaustible variety of other instructive, amusing, and entertaining reading given in abundance every month; besides which, “OUR GIRLS” contains a column of especial interest to our young lady friends, embracing the

with independent comments thereon.

“THE AUTHOR’S CORNER,”

a department in which the principal portion of our declined sketches, &c., is noticed and mercilessly criticized, will prove interesting as well as instructive to all, while the column devoted to witticisms, and bearing the title of

“OYSTER-CRACKERS,”

Contains every month, such a superabundance of mirthful items, puns, bon-mots, &c., that it cannot fail to elicit expressions of pleasure and satisfaction from the reader.

All communications addressed to the editor, on trivial business, outside subjects, &c., not included in our list of regular correspondence, unless containing stamp for answer, are noticed in the department headed

“OUR OUTWARD MAIL,”

In which connection all questions of an unimportant nature, and other minor matters, are discussed with impartial strictness.

one of the most interesting and novel portions of our sheet, is devoted to occasional initial notices of such matrimonial engagements as may be formed from time to time, between parties in our social circle here at home. The initial letters of each party are given, with a few mystical hints in addition, from which the reader must draw his own conclusions, as we are under solemn bonds not to reveal names. This department is also of more especial interest to our young ladies, and abundantly patronized.

Our large exchange magazines and the more deserving of our brother amateurs in the newspaper line, are noticed each month under the

“CRITIQUES,”

And their merits and faults pointed out with impartial care, for mutual improvement and continued advancement in the personal appearance of their sheets.

Terms, 75 cents per annum, in advance. Back numbers always supplied. Liberal discount to clubs. Special subscription rates for Agents. All communications should be addressed to

GEO. W. HILLS, Box 130, Newton, Mass.

The postage on “OUR GIRLS” is twelve cents per year, payable at the office where received. Subscribers please remember this, and not send postage to us.
